TODAY'S NOTES

01

Tee Box: Pick Your Side

Decide which side gives the best angle away from trouble or into the wind. Free decision, five seconds. Use it every time.

02

Start with the Outcome

See the shot, then choose the club. Planning backwards usually means less club. Most lob wedge situations are a PW or 8-iron once you know where you want the ball to finish.

03

Trees: The 7 Out of 10 Rule

Does this come off 7 times out of 10? If not, the safe route is almost certainly the better play. The shot that goes wrong costs more than the extra yards were ever worth.

04

Use the Stroke Index

Hole 1 here is a par 6 with your shots. That reframe changes everything: lay up sensibly, take a real look at par, and stop attacking when you do not need to.

05

Trust Your Aim

The worst swings today came after good alignment that was not trusted. Second-guessing led to compensation and worse results. Aim it, commit to it, swing to the target.

06

Putting Tempo

A brisker backswing means no need to add speed on the way through. Distance control is already much better. Keep working through the practice games.

07

Less Tilt at Address

Reducing side tilt through the shot helps avoid contact before the ball. Most noticeable in chipping, where it is the primary cause of fat contact.

08

Chipping: PW or 8-Iron First

Land it on the green and let it run. Lob wedge only when you need height and a quick stop with very little green. Everywhere else, the lower-lofted chip is more consistent and forgiving.

SUMMARY

Key Points to Take Away

- Tee box side selection before every drive.
- Outcome first, then club selection.
- 7/10 test before any recovery through trees.
- Reframe each hole using your stroke index.
- Aim good, trust it, commit.
- Brisker backswing tempo on the greens.
- Less tilt through impact, especially chipping.
- PW or 8-iron for most chips. Lob wedge is the exception.
